Cairns' policy has been making ourselves to be quiet but we have thought about the risk of Hungary's star + 2 would not if they were defeated. According to our version, we said that if they were defeated, Hungary would have all her recovered territory taken away from her again. I should like to deny this in a talk.
But I, I could, if course, say that it would not be taken away, but I could say that the best result of Cairns' speech would have been a false impression of what he said because he naturally would not commit himself to statements on our foreign policy. We were so far not committed to not siding Hungary's star. Then say again about the points about the Cairns + give the relevant passages from Halifax + Churchill on Roumania
